AND WHY NOT?

An arrangement whereby travelers in Boston's North station will hear music by a band of WPA musicians while waiting for trains probably will excite many critics of federal relief efforts. But what is it they will be excited about?

Musicians have as valid a claim to relief benefits as any other group of unemployed persons. The best way to make those benefits available is to give musicians an opportunity to use their talent and training. Audiences are essential.

Perhaps a railroad station isn't a proper setting and perhaps travelers won't be good listeners. That remains to be seen. It's not unreasonable to believe, however, that commuters might appreciate an interval of the mental and physical relaxation which music induces. The idea is worth trying.

To be sure, it won't be useful work in the sense that digging a ditch or building a bridge may be useful. There may be usefulness in music, however, which most Americans haven't found yet. The same skepticism which is putting the nerve-straining noises of this hitherto thoroughly practical civilization on the defensive suggests that some Americans are a little tired of knocking under to the usually needless clatter of their practical brothers. Strains of music in Boston's North station may represent something more significant than an ingenious method of relieving unemployed musicians. It might be the sign that an auditory revolt against unrelated noise is in progress.

BRITAIN'S NEW KING

With all the pageantry which the British employ so skillfully to make manifest their devotion to the royal household the reign of the late King George V has ended and the reign of King Edward VIII has begun. There will be more pageantry later—the coronation and the trip to India, notably. But behind the pageantry is hard reality.

Formality, important as they are, advertise a far more important fact. Britain has a new king, but it has also, a new man in an office. King Edward VIII is anything but colorless and complacent. His accession to the British throne is a more important event in politics than election of a new president in the United States.

King Edward will reign until his death. He is a vigorous man and an unusually well-prepared monarch. He understands thoroughly his function, and what is more important he has revealed in former years an inclination to use his personal power energetically in performance of that function. Every British subject and every government in the world is aware of new potentialities centered in the new and popular king.

This is an aspect of the royal succession easily overlooked. Fortunately, King Edward commands confidence; if he did not command confidence the importance of his character would be more evident than it is under the circumstances. He is friendly both with his countrymen and with foreigners. He understands the navy and the army, but he is not a militarist. He has a working knowledge of trade and business. He always has been interested keenly in social justice. Who knows what he may be able to do with the power of his office, always great when it is coupled with the power of a strong, intelligent individual? A new factor has been thrust into the problem of Europe's outlook on war and trade.

HEALTHY WEATHER

On a cold and frosty morning there may be derived some comfort for the day ahead by the cheerful certainty of those who think and say that zero weather is healthy weather.

The meaning of the phrase is inexact. Roughly, it has to do with the probability that germs, too, find it difficult to stay alive in extreme cold. As they curl up and die the health of the world is improved just that much.

But there are shades of meaning which have little to do with germ theory. It's healthy weather because a limited amount of experience with it makes one feel healthy. It's healthy weather, also, because by comparison with other varieties of winter weather it actually is healthy. Incidentally, one of the best ways to get along during a cold snap is to think how unpleasant dark, rainy days in winter can be. That's unhealthy weather.

"Most Americans want to give something for what they get."—The President at Atlanta.

THE STARS SAY

For Thursday, January 30

The planetary aspects for this day point to many doubts and perplexities, probably with the mind acutely disturbed. But in such agitations it would be well to call on tried and true friendships that will be found ready to assist in difficult situations.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of unsettlements in business, employment and in the private relations. These latter may develop unusual contacts or interests, with those in power being disposed to extend the friendly hand in moments of doubt and difficulties.

A child born on this day may be skillful and ingenious, but disposed to wander or be somewhat erratic or revolutionary.

Notable nativity: Franklin D. Roosevelt, president U. S.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Maurice H. B. Paul is among the very fortunate few who seem never worn down by the furious pace. As the society writer, Cholly Knickerbocker, he is always on the go with a speed that suggests the roulette ball and yet never loses enthusiasm.

On top of this he probably produces more copy than any two of the most prolific scribblers in Manhattan. Now and then he hikes off for Palm Beach or the Riviera, but never without typewriter. In his early 40's, he has been maintaining this tempo for two decades.

It is not likely that he can recall a dusk that donning a dinner jacket or white tie and tails was not a part of his routine. A bouncing sort of fellow, ruddy, bright-eyed, he may attend four or five affairs an evening and have time for a night cap drop into a supper club.

A bachelor, he lives with his mother, to whom he is devoted, dividing time between his apartment on East 57th street and a country place in Connecticut. He is a Social Registerite, drives a Rolls, and has familiar scraps with everybody of social importance in the greater city.

Willie and Eugene Howard are on the boards again after a romp in Hollywood. No two performers have a more loyal New York following. Employing practically the same rigamarole of their vaudeville days, they rarely tire. Willie has made that enormous and despairing shrug as much a part of the theater as the footlights. It looks to be broad burlesque, but you realize it's art as definite in its expansive way as a fluttery mignon gesture by Duse.

My first view of the Howards was from the Columbia's peanut heaven in Cincinnati. A standard turn billed as "The Traveling Salesman and the Messenger Boy." The chief fun was in Willie's trick exploding cigaret. Just as he raised it to his mouth pop, pop. As he registered fright then, it was rowdy belly-laugh stuff and I have no doubt it would be today. Certainly his sly peaking at a heaving bosom during a burlesque quartette rendition of "Rigoletto" is as funny as anything on the stage today.

Neither H. G. Wells nor Somerset Maugham missed many brass rings on the New York carrousel during their stay. They took the Bohemian as well as the Gold Coast in stride—parties at A. C. Blumenthal's, the big floor shows in Broadway restaurants, Jimmy Kelly's midnight madness in Houston street and the inevitable Scotch woodcock breakfast at Ruben's. Heretofore in their visits they restricted associations to the literati and dull teas of publishers—or dull publishers teas—but this time the shackles were off. Incidentally, Maugham thinks he found the perfect prepositional title for his autobiography in: "Of Me I Sing!"

Ruben's, cracking the cocoon of depression to spread itself in mirrory and silver decor in the high ho Plaza purlieu, is a testimonial to the popularity of its owner, Arnold Ruben. Plus, of course, good food. He is liked by stage, screen and radio and scores drift there nightly to receive his cheery, tuxedoed midnight-to-dawn greeting. It has become a night out routine—like going to Jack's in other days. The new raucous is a far cry from Ruben's sawdust carpeted hole-in-the-wall on upper Broadway 20 years ago. And he proved delicatessenselike so many unpolished callings can attain eclat and splendor.

Abel Green and Jack Pulaski continue to turn in a smart performance, getting out the weekly Variety. They were hand-picked, coached and moulded by Sime himself to carry on. Sime, shrewdly hard-boiled and softly sentimental, realized that in cleaving to the idiom of Broadway he was satisfying a language hunger far beyond Manhattan. Indeed, it extends from coast to coast and across the ocean. Variety is hawked along the Strand, Unter den Linden and the Paris boulevards in the same fashion as in New York. When the late Lord Reading was Viceroy of India he often asked for Variety with his gin-sling at his exclusive club. It fascinated him.

A musical argument with a professional pianist over appoggio, 5-finger exercises and things like that has broken out in the next room. As a second mandolinist—and could I go to town on the full notes of "Over the Waves!"—with Prof. Ed Womeloff's Silver Bell orchestra I have a notion to go in and drive home a few points. With a suspender thumbing flourish.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Heart Disease
Not long ago I told you about heart disease in children, saying that often the heart is damaged as a result of some infectious disease, such as pneumonia, diphtheria or scarlet fever. Careful investigation of this problem by the New York Heart association clearly indicates that in many cases heart disease can be prevented. This is possible if adequate steps are taken early in the course of the original disease.

No one can deny the importance of heart disease as a factor in ill-health. Although in many cases heart disease can be prevented, this is possible if adequate steps are taken early in the course of the original disease.

Let us examine some of the available statistics: The recorded death rate from diseases of the heart in the registration area of the United States has increased, from 116 per 100,000 in 1900, to 224 per 100,000 in 1932. The recorded death rate from heart disease increased in New York City from 93 per 100,000 of the population in 1875, to 244 in 1930.

But you must not be misled by these figures. It is illogical to assume that there has been an actual and great increase in the number of cases of diseases of the heart. Students of the subject explain the figures by improvements in recording health conditions, better means of diagnosis and more exact methods of compiling the statistical material.

Further progress in the prevention and control of this disease can only be made by thorough co-operation between the physician and the patient. A disorder of the heart does not mean in most instances shortening of the span of life, or becoming permanently disabled. But these dangers, great or small, cannot be eliminated if medical advice and care are ignored. The very first step in the treatment of heart disease is to determine the cause and the extent of the disease.

Diet, overwork, emotional strain, excessive fatness, and acute infections, are factors that demand medical attention. In certain instances, such as rheumatic fever, digitalis may be required. But, of course, this can only be determined by the attending physician.

Few persons realize that the heart requires rest. When the feet, arms or other parts of the body are tired we rest them. While we cannot stop the heart from beating, the same consideration should be given this vital organ. This is a matter of greatest importance in certain forms of heart disease.

Do not be alarmed by the words "heart disease." Most cases are purely functional and speedily relieved. If you have been told you have some disturbance of the heart, place yourself in the hands of a competent physician. Follow his instructions carefully. I am more than confident that you will improve in health and certainly will be happier.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. PILES

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal veins. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonard, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, eases the pressure of the congested blood and helps to heal and restore the affected parts. HEM-ROID has such a fine record of success that all druggists say one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must relieve your Pile agony or money back.

CHAPTER I

About the only thing mother was really stuffy about was her reading mystery stories. She said they were not for girls seventeen years old, that they gave them exotic ideas and excited the nerves. Whenever she meant by that, "So the other girls read 'The Thin Man' and 'The Thin Man,' I had to be satisfied with occasional peeks at their copies and with tame love stories.

But when my very own French teacher was murdered last year, I was right in the midst of it. I was the whole family practically involved in it, and the papers published nothing else for weeks, there being much she could do about it, I know she was awfully worried about it, about my being in it, and she was afraid I might develop like Allen. Allen is my older brother. He is only a year older than I am, but he is a real trouble maker. He is awfully nervous and moody. I heard Dad call him "neurotic" once, but I haven't heard of yet just what he meant by that. "Peculiar" is what the kids call him, perhaps Dad wanted to say the same thing. I am awfully fond of Allen in spite of his being neurotic or peculiar, and that is why I felt so upset when I found out about him. But that comes later.

I had lots more sympathy for things one wants to do when one is young. He is always telling me not to fuss, especially over my French. "Frederica, don't fuss over an animal as I know, from the tip of her curly black head to her toes on her little feet."

That was when I was so worried over the evidence I was concealing, mother thought I was brooding over Miss Sinclair's death. Had she known!

It all happened last fall. Our town is a small one across the bay in San Francisco, and even though it is so near a big city, it is much like all the small towns when a murder happened there. I was down over the railroad tracks near the foreign workmen live, but I was in a good apartment house, when the victim was a teacher from the town's only high school. I was practically paralyzed. I talked about anything else, but the papers did not publish anything else, at least not on the front page.

I will never get over the shock of the first headlines: "HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER MURDERED," "Miss Sinclair Shot to Death," "I almost fainted at the breakfast table."

"Now, Julie," cautioned mother, "you must not get excited. We know you found you were of Miss Sinclair and it is a terrible thing, but we must take it sensibly."

I broke into Dad. "Will there be any school today?"

"I think so, Julie," that he turned to mother. "I should not worry over Julie's nerves, mother."

I didn't get what he meant then, but I saw afterward that he was right. I was concerned about a man. I was really afraid we would have one. We all read parts of the story and told each other the story, even mother joining the excitement.

It seemed that she was shot to death while she sat at her desk writing a letter to someone whose name the police had not disclosed. They knew it in full. The police themselves had discovered her after a mysterious telephone call from San Francisco had informed them she had been killed. The call had traced to the Gerry Building, the booths, but as neither the check nor the checking clerk had stood near them could remember the many persons who stopped at the booth that day. The trail seemed to end there. The hour of her death had been as around ten o'clock from the apartment house had called the police a list of people who had been there that day, the paper said. The last visitor had been there at 8:30, she said. The call had traced to the police at 10:45. If the man who made the call had just been on the 10:43 boat, and if person were the murderer, then Miss Sinclair must have been killed after than 9:40 p. m.

I almost moaned aloud. "That I was there yesterday afternoon and she was alive happy!"

"You were there!" exclaimed mother.

Yes, I was working after school in the office. (I took a course in writing, and our principal made an assistant in the office for an after school.) "Mr. Perkins said some reports ready in time for the superintendent's meeting at 10 o'clock. I only had a half hour to finish them. I had done the typewriting, but I had to fill in each copy with some figures. Just as I was writing the most, my pen broke—I have another, Dad?"

I just nodded and I hurried to try to use a regular pen. The darn—the mean thing it did. I only had ten minutes and I was almost ready to cry. Then Miss Sinclair came in to see her absence report, and she asked me what the trouble was. I said, "My pen broke." She laughed and said, "Take my pen. Bring it to me when you go through it, and be sure you take good care of it, because I never use any pen. It's sort of a pet of mine."

I told the story to my parents, and they said that I could see her in the afternoon before.

The police discovered the body after a mysterious phone call informed them that she had been killed . . .

small and lively and gay. The kids were all pretty fond of her, more so than the other teachers were. She was about 25, I imagine, almost as short as I am, with reddish hair and brilliant green eyes, and she had marvelous clothes. I think myself the other teachers were jealous of her. Her family had evidently been wealthy once; she had a different background from the rest of them. She had even studied French in a convent in Switzerland. She was friendly with the students, too, a little too friendly, some of us thought at heart. A young teacher has to be careful about that. I know some of the boys had crushes on her.

She lived alone in a four-room apartment, another thing which most of the teachers thought funny, for if they didn't live with their families, they lived with one or two other teachers. A couple of them lived across the hall from Miss Sinclair. I had seen them the day before.

I was almost crying by the time Dicky honked his horn as I told my folks about the last time I had seen her. He was all agog about it, of course, and he wondered if we would be questioned about our visit there. That hadn't occurred to me, but it seemed quite probable, and I wished I had worn the green knit suit that is so much more becoming than the dark blue one I had on.

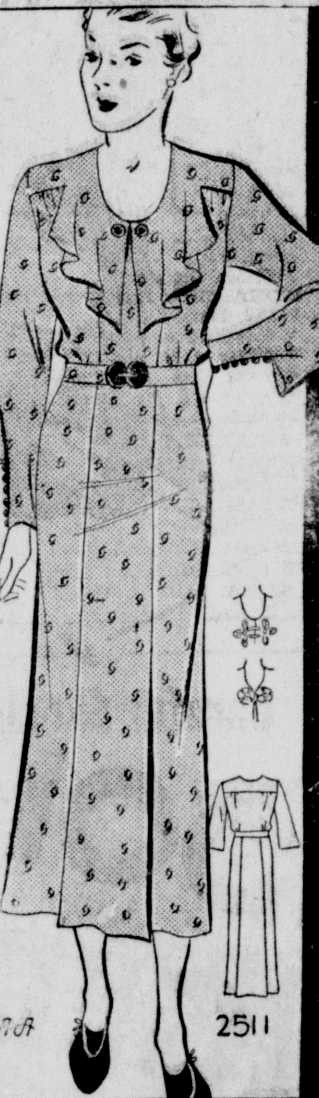

Classes did not amount to much that day. I don't know who were more upset, the pupils or the teachers. As for me, I just sat waiting to be called to confer with the police. But when 3:30 came and no one had phoned for me, I relaxed. I admit I was a bit disappointed. I went down to the office to work, hoping something might happen there. I was surely glad that I had taken that typewriting prize which had got me this job after school. I never dreamed of ever using it for what you might call commercial purposes when I enrolled for the course. I merely thought I should be able to type my own stories if I was going to write after I grew a little older. I realized that one had to know something about life before beginning. But believe me, I've learned a lot about life since those days!

That afternoon, however, did not seem to be very exciting. The regular stenographers whispered that Mr. Perkins had been upset all day, of course, and there had been lots of telephone calls. But they really did not know any more than I did.

At 4:00 o'clock a big man with gray hair and a red face came in and asked for Mr. Perkins. (He is the principal, in case I did not tell you.) He went into his office and was gone some time. Then suddenly the door opened. Mr. Perkins stood there, looking very white and serious.

"Julie," he said, "Inspector O'Brien wants to speak to you". (To Be Continued)

FROCK FOR LARGER SIZES Pattern 2511

"How can I vary my favorite frock?" is a query Anne Adams frequently hears. But first of all, what makes the frock a favorite? Its slender, flattering lines, to be sure—the same lines one finds in pattern 2511, which is bound to be a special favorite with those who wear size forty-odd. There's concealment and flattery in the soft folds of a jabot, which, cut in one with the yoke, saves time in making. And see how ably slender center panels minimize side-to-side measurement. What's more, here's a timely hint of two on ways its trim may be varied—linked buttons, one week, braided frog the next, and cloth ties for dressup. A small, well-spaced print is a Spring "must-have!"

Pattern 2511 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 4½ yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Be sure to order our spring pattern book for smart new clothes that'll fit you and your needs to a T! Gay, practical frocks to cheer you at work. Lovely party frocks and sports clothes to flatter you at play. Collars, blouses, skirts for multiplying costumes. Chic slenderizing styles. Patterns for tots. Fabric and accessory news. Price of book fifteen cents. Book and a pattern together, twenty-five cents.

A Review of the Day's News
By Arthur Brisbane

FOLLOWING the House of Representatives, the Senate passed the bonus bill, 78 to 19. The House vote was 324 to 61. That 17-year fight is ended.

Now, the Treasury will print two thousand four hundred and ninety-one million dollars worth of "baby bonds"; veterans will get the bonds, the same as cash, and taxpayers will pay interest on them, nearly everybody happy. This proves the power of efficient organization.

WE ARE used to radio, roaring forever through the ether, pay no attention to distant messages, only wish we could catch sounds of long ago, still going around and around. The orders given by Caesar as he rode without stirrups in his red shirt around the walls of Alesia would be interesting, or Genghis Khan ordering his soldiers to go into battle shouting, or Stentor in his speciality.

But, the Rev. Carroll Stegall, benevolent missionary, saving souls in the Belgian Congo, 6,000 miles away, interests everybody. He was talking through 6,000 miles to Mr. Reddy, short wave amateur in Chattanooga, when suddenly this came from the missionary:

"I must stop. Wife says driver ants attacking house."

THE DRIVER ANT of Africa, in his millions, goes straight ahead, stopping for nothing devouring everything in the way of ant food. Had the missionary and his wife not left promptly they would have been skeletons in an hour.

Sometimes the driver ants are welcome; houseowners leave and return after the ants go, to find every mouse, rat, insect, snake, in the house devoured or picked bare.

Scientists say the human race lives always more or less in danger of its more highly efficient insect enemies, but man's recent knowledge of chemistry, electricity and flying should save him.

ADDIS ABABA has temporarily stopped announcing "great victories over the Italians" to report Ethiopian troops retreating 268 miles in the north. Addis Ababa, by the way, the little city that is now Haile Selassie's capital, did not belong to him or his predecessors in Abyssinia 50 years ago.

It was one of a dozen small independent territories, easily conquered by the descendants of King Solomon, who got from the slave trade plenty of money to buy powder and bullets.

After a few more Italian victories, more of the conquered tribes may remember their ancient freedom and go over to Mussolini.

Today's news tells of Italian machine guns "killing hundreds of Ethiopians in fierce three-day fighting along the jungle front, near England's Kenya colony."

Ethiopians are helpless against modern Italian machine guns, tanks and air bombs, as were former rulers of tribes conquered by As-

See Anything for 1936, Jim?

sia against powder and bullets.

The suggestion that people of Jewish descent and birth return to Palestine has not appealed to all Jews in America; other Americans would not be pleased by a suggestion that they return to Ireland, Scotland, or other points of origin. Men want opportunity.

Some might be reconciled to the Holy Land migration by the fact that Palestine is about to establish a stock exchange, a Wall Street of its own. It already has an "embryonic exchange" functioning for private banking houses, some founded by refugees from Germany. According to building operators in the Holy Land, a stock exchange, establishing "liquidity" of securities, would be a great help.

EVERYTHING is possible; you might live to see magnificent hotels at Jaffa or Jerusalem, with "best minds" from America going over with their fortunes to "operate" as they please, without any restrictions of a new deal.

Some little trader, standing at the wrecked corner of Broad and

Wall Streets, might, mournfully, read:

"Another ten million-share lay on the Palestine exchange, seats selling for $2,000,000."

WILHELM HOHENZOLLERN, out of respect for the King's death and funeral, has postponed yesterday's celebration of his 77th birthday until next Friday.

Apart from natural sympathy of one royalty for another, the former Kaiser owes gratitude to King George. At the war's end there was wide demand that the Kaiser be hanged, and Lloyd George was supposed to think it a good idea. But the former Kaiser is King George's cousin, their mother and father were brother and sister, children of Queen Victoria.

A hanging would not have looked well in the royal family of England, and that may have saved the Kaiser.

THE THREE little Japanese creatures holding their hands on their eyes, ears and mouth are no wiser than Postmaster General Farley.

NOW THAT IT COSTS LESS TO BUY A CAR "ON TIME"

Use these Savings to help you get the kind of car you've always wanted

ALL of the mystery and a lot of the expense have gone out of time payments with the new GMAC 6% Time Payment Plan.

It's simple as A-B-C. Delivered price, less trade-in, plus insurance, plus 6%—that's about all there is to it. And it not only saves brain-racking—it saves money.

One result is that you can buy a Buick for little if any more than you're used to paying for a car in the lowest-priced class. Two or three dollars more per week puts a big car at your doorstep—maybe less, if you're used to "dressing up" low-priced cars to make them stand out from the crowd.

Why don't you let us show you what your money will buy under this improved plan—and with Buick's new low prices? There's no obligation at all in a demonstration—we get as much fun out of watching your eyes pop as you get out of Buick's thrilling ride. And how are you ever going to know whether you can afford a Buick unless you let us show you in dollars-and-cents terms?

EVER STEP FROM 10 TO 60

in less than 21 seconds? That's the kind of hair-trigger getaway you get, when you need it, in the Buick Special Series 40. All the speed a sensible driver could ask for—and hydraulic brakes to keep your stopping line straight and smooth. But come around—take a demonstration—see for yourself why Buick's the buy.

Year's Work Is Discussed By Travelers

Suggestions for next year's program were given by members of the Salem Travelers club at the meeting Tuesday afternoon in the assembly room of the public library.

The program consisted of two interesting papers on Africa. The first was a biography of "Captain Harry Dean," an important figure in African history. The paper, presented by Mr. Orvil Hoover, was a true story of the negro sea captain and his quest. Harry Dean, well educated and idealistic, gave his life to the establishing of a country or state in Africa where the freed slaves and negroes could live in peace. His life mission led him into many strange places and incidents, some of which Mrs. Hoover related. The betterment of the Ethiopian race was his aim and because of it certain political factors caused his banishment from Africa.

Mrs. John Burns reviewed an article, "My Domestic Life in French Guinea," written by Eleanor de Chetelat, whose husband was sent to the country to make geological surveys and to collect scientific data for the government. Madame Chetelat accompanied him on his journey after the government had disclaimed any responsibility for what might befall her during the months spent with her husband.

Mrs. Burns related a number of incidents concerning the life and habits of the natives, and their country.

The next meeting will be Feb. 4 at the library assembly room.

Mrs. Loren Early offered as piano numbers a group of three arrangements from "Carmen" and "Contra Dance" by Beethoven. Miss Martha Bailer entertained with two vocal selections, "My Home in Yonder Vale" from "Carmen" and "The Little Danzoni" by Novello. She was accompanied at piano by Miss Margaret Kirkbride.

Mindful of your Spring wardrobe needs, Anne Adams brings you this latest version of the popular two-piece frock. One of its many smart features is the novel yoke that forms a slenderizing panel down the front of the blouse, and a graceful box pleat over the top of the sleeve. Make it yourself! You certainly can—easily! Make it all of one fabric such as the novelty cotton crash pictured, or in two contrasting cottons—the blouse a print, the skirt a solid color. THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeanette Young Norton

WITH MEAT prices soaring, the best bet is a good-sized joint, so that there is plenty of meat left over, not for just hash or croquettes, but for really tasty dishes nice as these may be.

There are, however, other ways of dealing with cold meat, and if it is well flavored and you prepare the left-overs in such a way that the meat is merely made hot but not cooked again, good tasty and nourishing dishes will result. Here are a few suggestions:

For beef fritters, remove all fat and gristle from cold beef and cut the meat into neat portions. Season these with a mixture of salt, pepper and powdered horseradish, and dip each in a batter made of two ounces of flour, half a gill of cold water, tablespoon of olive oil and an egg. Fry in deep fat until a golden brown and serve with vegetables and a good brown gravy.

For those left-overs of lamb or mutton, mince and pound till smooth one pound of cold lean meat. Season the meat with salt, pepper, a little sauce or ketchup and beat in two eggs with half a cup of milk. Place in a buttered mold and steam for 20 minutes. It is nice with an onion or a caper sauce.

Beef Cannelon

If the larger contains some left-over tongue or ham as well as beef, serve a beef cannelon. Mince together 12 ounces of cold roast beef and four ounces of cold cooked tongue or ham. Mix with four ounces of sieved white bread crumbs, a tablespoon of chopped parsley, seasoning, a beaten egg and sufficient good gravy to bind. Shape into a roll, wrap in greased paper and bake for about 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Remove the paper, lay the roll on a dish for serving and pour gravy over and around.

offers less scope than does beef or mutton. We all know it served with apple sauce, but not everyone has discovered, as have the French, that turnips make an excellent accompaniment to it. Peel and slice some turnips and place in a casserole with some melted butter. Remove when partly cooked, add to the pot a little well-seasoned stock, lay in it some slices of cold pork, and cover with the turnips. When the vegetables are cooked, serve at once.

Good 6-room house. Brick veneered. Hard wood. Practically new. Paved street and nice location. $4,500.

Two-family house. Five rooms on each side, all separate. Furnace, electricity and bath. Located on Ash Street. Already rented at $25.00. Price $2,300.

Five room, one-floor bungalow, together with five lots. $2,500.

Five-room bungalow in the best section of town. Very handy to Fourth St. school. Two-car garage. $3,700.

Now, all of these houses are priced at about one-half of what it would cost to build them and the terms can be adjusted almost like rent. REAL ESTATE

TO SETTLE AN ESTATE

Fine little farm of about 30 acres, located about one mile from Guilford on improved road. Good seven-room house, nearly new barn with room for 10 head of cattle, large chicken house and tool house. Plenty of fruit of all kind.

This farm has a wonderful large frontage of about 3,500 feet on Guilford Lake. Enough lots could be sold off to more than pay the price asked for the farm. In order to settle estate, owners are willing to sacrifice. Here is a real opportunity for you. Stop in and talk it over.

Warren Suspects On Trial Second Time

CLEVELAND, Jan. 29.—George Sargent and Anthony Labrizetti, of Akron, went on trial today for the second time for the $100,000 holdup of a mail truck at Warren, last April.

They were convicted in September and sentenced to 25 years imprisonment, but Judge Samuel H. W. granted a new trial on the ground that the first jury's deliberation of only 10 minutes was insufficient.

charge of Dr. Morrill. Transportation to Youngstown is provided by Rotarians.

Outstanding Cases
Last year there were three operations and two of the club's young charges were confined in the hospital for over a year. The most prolonged case has been that of a boy now in Junior High school. His casts came off this year after wearing them for eight years, and he is now walking with the aid of crutches.

One girl was operated on at the Shriners hospital in Chicago, the Rotary club taking care of transportation. One severe case of flat feet has been corrected. This boy's feet hurt him so much he could hardly walk to and from school. Since going to Dr. Morrill and wearing braces, his feet do not bother him now.

Great improvement has been shown in every case of deformity handed through the Rotary club. Approximately one-half of the cases cared for are children suffering from the effects of infantile paralysis.

Most of the children come from homes of parents not in position to contact specialists for their children and the work being carried on by the Rotary club enables these children to receive the best care possible. In fact, these children are given preference over private cases which come before the specialists in this work.

The ministers adjourned without announcement of the result of their deliberations.

Informed quarters predicted the flotation of a huge defense loan, possibly as high as $200,000,000 ($1,000,000,000) to increase and re-equip the national armed forces. Budget estimates are to be laid before parliament next Tuesday.

Foreign Secretary Eden has been busy since Monday conferring with kings and foreign ministers in London for the funeral of the late King George V.

Calls on Boris
The foreign office announced that Eden called on King Boris of Bulgaria and is dining with King Carol of Rumania tonight. Yesterday he saw Pierre-Etienne Flandin, French foreign minister and Paul van Zeeland, Belgian foreign minister.

Reports from Paris that Eden and Flandin had discussed French fears that Reichsfuehrer Hitler was planning an early coup in the demilitarized Rhineland were not denied in authoritative quarters.

King Edward received Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Russia's foreign commissar. The nature of their conversation was not disclosed.

Theater Attractions

One of the performers in Frank Buck's "Fang and Claw" to be shown at the State Thursday only.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive" Frank Buck, has recently returned from an expedition to the Malay peninsula and northern India, bringing with him many feet of interesting film. He has named his new travel film, "Fang and Claw" and it will be shown at the State theater Thursday only.

Tiger Chases Native
One of the highlights is a hair-raising pursuit of a native by a man-eating tiger, a ferocious beast that lurks in the Sakai country. Another tiger episode depicts the capture of the largest species ever seen in the Malay country.

A giant crocodile is caught in an interesting manner, it's jaws tied by Buck, while it is still in its native home. Wild monkeys of many different species are caught in various ways and Buck adds a large herd of rare antelope to his collection.

Two enormous pythons, each about 28 feet in length, are captured under difficult conditions. In another scene a tiger stalks and springs upon a baby rhinoceros that has strayed away from its mother. Buck's cameramen catch the picture and then Buck saves the baby rhino.

The Sakai tribesmen are shown in their native villages. Their customs, superstitions and living conditions are depicted interestingly in "Fang and Claw."

Cook Wins Millionaire
Tonight at the State "If You Could Only Cook" is being shown for the last times. This film has Herbert Marshall, Jean Arthur and Leo Carrillo in the cast and show a millionaire who is engaged to a society girl, masquerading as a butler and falling in love with the cook. Marshall portrays the millionaire who is bored with life and gets a job as a butler in a racketeer's home, played by Leo Carrillo. Jean Arthur is the girl who can cook.
